

Let me pose a question for your consideration.

Are you Buying your children, and grand children's future, quality of life with slave labor and cheap prices today??????

Look at the international trade deficit today it is?? _____ annually.

Every Dollar spent on goods manufactured in someone else's economy reduces your own.

You may want to believe that these dollars are a donation to the have-nots, the poor starving people of the world, and therefore justified in the sense of charity. Please rethink this thinking, The quality of life and the per capita income in these "new trading partners" has changed very little. What has changed is the demand upon these poor sole to produce hard American currency has increased.

When you discount the Government and Management take in countries like China, India, and Mexico the wage per hour has actually dropped. A recent study showed that the per capita income of the Chinese worker was the equivalent to $600.00 per year US. This amounts to nothing more than slave labor, and we are supporting this. In India the untouchable caste, whom supply the bulk of the manufacturing labor, are working seven fifteen hour days every week for about $10 US.

To be continued...

Pat Garrett